TRANSPERANCY IN THE DECISION-MAKING PROCESS IN SLOVENIA

Tina Divjak, Head of Advocacy CNVOS

MIRROR TO THE GOVERNMENT – WHY WE MONITORED?

- To see how public participation works in practice
- How by-laws contribute to better public participation
- Where (which stage, which ministry) are the biggest problems that need to be addressed

WHAT WE MONITORED?

- The general communication environment (general mechanisms for the inclusion of civil society: publication of information and documents, organizations of public consultations, e-participation tools, …)

- The support environment for the inclusion of civil society (contact person for NGOs, financial support, inclusion of NGO representatives in the working bodies)

- The legislation preparation procedure (standards of consultations for 33 acts, 17 state bodies in 2009 and 53 acts, 19 state bodies in 2010)

❑ Government's bodies' evaluation of the responses they received from civil society
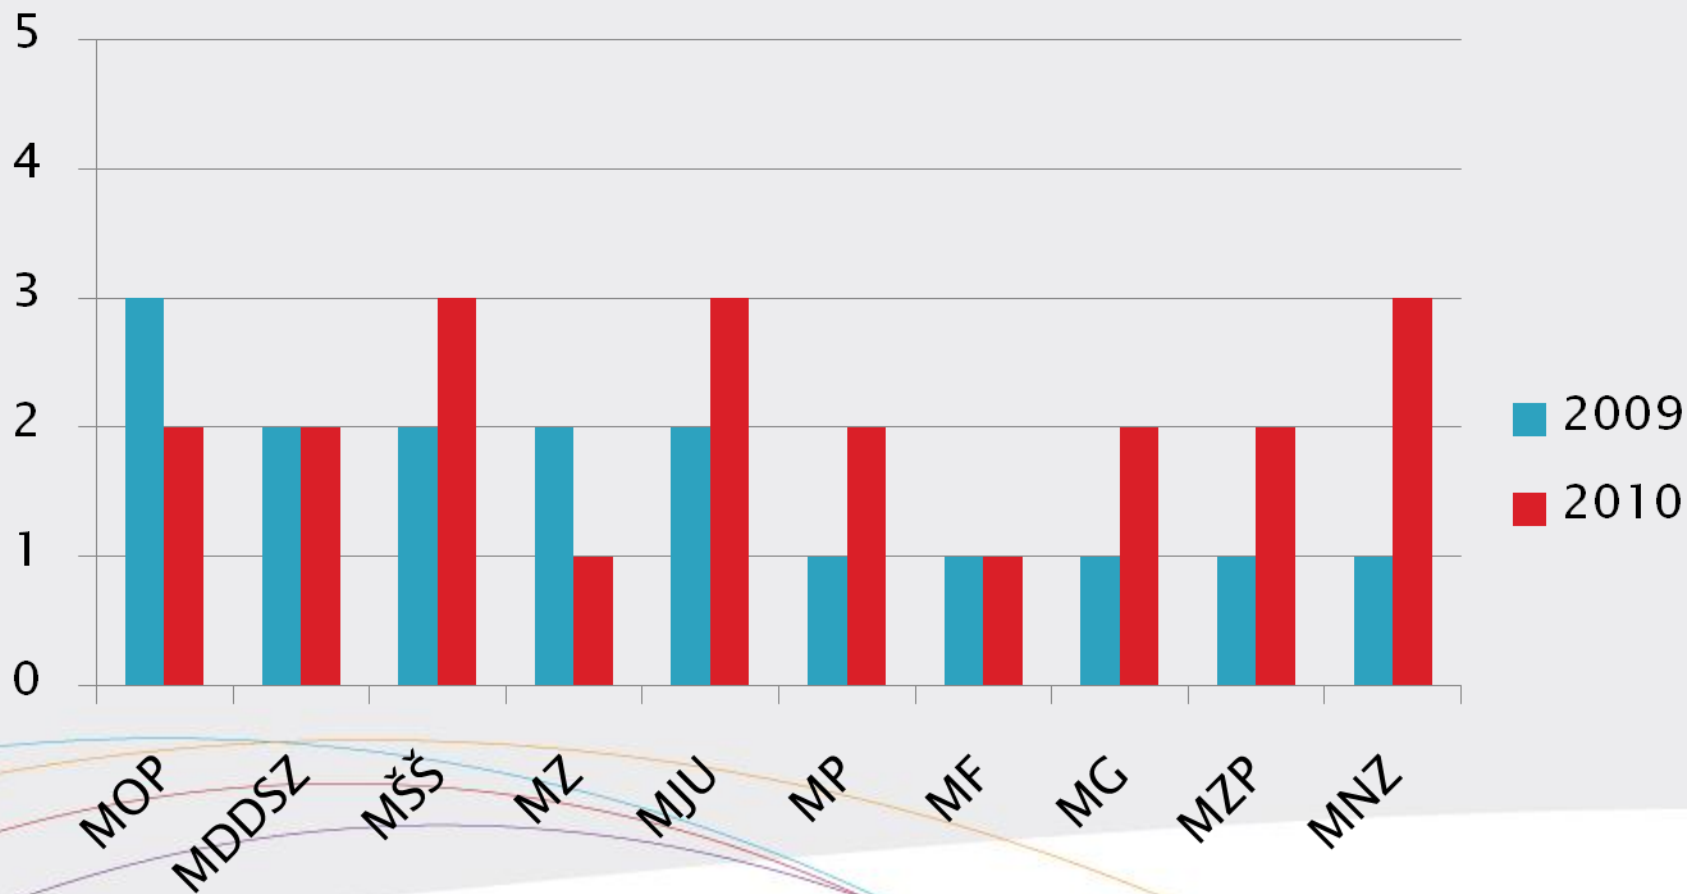

RESULTS

- Comparison between 2006 - 2009 and 2009 – 2010 (scale: 1 – 5)

- Between 2006 and 2009: same level of inclusion (relatively low)

- Between 2009 and 2010: improvement seen (overall score: + 0.40, generel environment: + 0.56, legislation procedure; + 0.90)

2006 - 2009

2009 - 2010

RESULTS FOR E-PARTICIPATION TOOLS (2010)

- The government body proposing the legislation either on its website or via an e-newsletter:
- publishes details and information about public participation in specific procedures (3)
- publishes the proposals and comments made by the public about the work of the proposing government body (1)
- publishes answers and explanations with regard to the proposals put forward by the interested members of public (3)
- publishes a list of frequently asked questions and answers concerning public participation in specific cases (1)
- uses structured e-questionnaires to gauge public opinion (1)
- enables interested members of the public to sign up to a registry (1)
- emails interested members of the public with electronic news (4)
- organises public debates (via forums, chats, blogs) and prepares and publishes the outcomes of these debates (1)
- organises public events (web conferences, e-forums) (1)

RECOMMENDATIONS

- Contact person for NGOs at each Ministry
- Identification of key stakeholders and inclusion at the early stage
- Summary reports
- Secretariat general of the Government as guardian of public participation
- Increase of e-participation tools

IMPACT

- Big media coverage

- Report still used as a reference

- Monitoring will be repeated every couple of years

- In between: counter of breaches of the Resolution on legislative regulation (breaches of publication and deadlines)

Counter of breaches of the Resolution on legislative regulation
